

Luke 6:47-48

(47) Everyone who comes to Me and hears My words and practices them, I will show you what he is like: (48) He is like a man building a house, who dug deep and laid the foundation on the rock; and a flood came, and the torrent beat against that house, but could not shake it, because it was founded on the rock.

Matthew 7:24-27

(24) Therefore, everyone who hears these words of Mine and practices them, I will compare him to a wise man, who built his house upon the rock; (25) And the rain came down, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; but it did not fall, for it was founded upon the rock. (26) And everyone who hears these words of Mine and does not practice them shall be compared to a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand; (27) And the rain came down, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell, and great was the fall of it."

A Faithful Version

In this parable, Jesus describes one who hears His words and does them as a man who, when building his house, digs his foundation deeply and upon rock. When a flood threatens it, the house remains intact on its secure base.

Jesus' metaphor in the parable is apt: A man's character is like a house. Every thought is like a piece of timber in that house, every habit a beam, every imagination a window, well or badly placed. They all gather into a unity, handsome or grotesque. We decide how that house is constructed.

Unless one builds his character on the rock-solid foundation of God's Word, he will surely be swept away by the flood now inundating the world. As 1 Corinthians 3:11 says, "For no other foundation can anyone lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

The Berean: Daily Verse and Commentary for Luke 6:47-48 (<http://www.theberean.org>)

Of the two builders in the parable, one is a thoughtful man who deliberately plans his house with an eye to the future; the other is not a bad man, but thoughtless, casually building in the easiest way. The one is earnest; the other is content with a careless and unexamined life. The latter seems to want to avoid the hard work of digging deep to ensure a strong foundation, and also takes a short-range view, never thinking what life will be like six months into the future. He trades away future good for present pleasure and ease.

The flood obviously represents the trials of life. Frequently, the trials of life descend upon us either through our own lack of character or because of events in the world around us. Is our house strong enough to withstand the onslaught of the horrendous events of the end time? Can it even withstand our own weaknesses?

— John W. Ritenbaugh

To learn more, see:

The Flood Is Upon Us!

Related Topics:

Building Analogy

Building Character

Building Metaphor

Character

Character, Building

Christ as Rock

Foundation as Metaphor

Foundation of God's Word

Parable of the Two Builders

Self Examination

Trials