

2 Corinthians 12:11-13

(11) I have made a fool of myself, but you drove me to it. I ought to have been commended by you, for I am not in the least inferior to the "super-apostles," even though I am nothing. (12) The things that mark an apostle—signs, wonders and miracles—were done among you with great perseverance. (13) How were you inferior to the other churches, except that I was never a burden to you? Forgive me this wrong!

New International Version

The apostle Paul, despite his cautions to Timothy (see II Timothy 2:23; I Timothy 6:3-5), realized at one point that if he did not challenge the foolish challenges of his enemies (concerning his apostolic authority and methods), naïve members of the Corinthian congregation might believe them. His lengthy answer spans II Corinthians 11 and 12.

Obviously, Paul felt extremely uncomfortable about answering these allegations, as is evidenced by his self-effacing reference to himself as a fool, but he also realized that his silence would have tacitly endorsed the charges. Likewise, our Savior, when confronted about His identity and credentials, knew the timing was right to put the gainsaying Pharisees in their place (John 8:52-58).

As one minister said, "If you are going to preach a warning message, you had better be mindful of your exit strategies, or be prepared to die on that hill of battle." There certainly are times when diplomacy fails and silence is no longer appropriate. Our society is replete with foolish teachings, ideas, theories, and misconceptions—both secular and religious—and under the right circumstances, they should be confronted and shown to be false, lest they be accepted as factual.

As maturing Christians, we must learn to discern when it is proper to answer a fool according to his folly (in the manner his foolishness deserves), and when it is a bad idea to answer a fool according to his folly (lowering ourselves to his undignified level). The right exercise of God's Spirit in us, which Paul calls "the mind of Christ" (I Corinthians

The Berean: Daily Verse and Commentary for 2 Corinthians 12:11-13
(<http://www.theberean.org>)
2:16), provides the potential to have and use this ability.

— David F. Maas

To learn more, see:
To Answer a Fool—or Not

Related Topics:

According to His Folly

Answering Fools

Arguing

Argumentation

Confrontation

Diplomacy

Discernment

Discernment, Growing in

Fools, Answering

Commentary copyright © 1992-2016 Church of the Great God
New International Version copyright © 1973, 1978, 1984 by International Bible Society