

Daily Verse and Comment

1 John 4:20-21

(20) If someone says, "I love God," and hates his brother, he is a liar; for he who does not love his brother whom he has seen, how can he love God whom he has not seen? (21) And this commandment we have from Him: that he who loves God must love his brother also.

New King James Version

John presents these verses as a challenge, a test, to his readers. There are many who say they "love God" or "I have fellowship with God" or "I know God," and John is saying, "Prove it by loving your brother." The proof that love is real is the action that it produces. It will always help the other person in the long run.

If a person really loves God, he will honor his parents, he will not commit murder, nor will he fornicate, commit adultery, lie, steal, or covet. In other words, he will keep God's Commandments. If a person is really becoming close to God, he will not do any of these things—and not their spiritual counterparts either.

This verse, then, offers a permanently valid test to see whether our religion is the true one or not. Do we love God? Do we love one another? The proof that we love God is that we love our brother with agape love, for that kind of love must have an outlet, or it will not be reciprocated back to God.

The feelings associated with agape love arise as a result of our fellowship with God through experiencing life's events with Him as a dominating influence on our thinking.

— John W. Ritenbaugh

To learn more, see:

Love's Emotional Dimension

Related Topics:

Agape Love

Fellowship with God

Knowing God

Love's Emotional Dimension

Loving Brother

Loving God

Loving God is Keeping Commandments

Loving God is to Hate Evil